OUR STORY

Everyone has a story. We are no different. Our story involves a colourful herd of life-size cow sculptures painted by some amazingly talented artists from around the world. Since 1999 our original art has grown to include over 10.000 artists across 100 events hosted in over 90 cities. CowParade has become the world's largest public art phenomenon.

CowParade events aim to inspire, uplift and reach as many people as possible. It revives the spirit of community, bringing together residents of each host city with artists, local businesses and non-profit organisations all supporting and benefiting from the event. Not to mention the many outside visitors attracted to the art on display in the host city.

Our artistic goal is to inspire curiosity, thought and discussion amongst visitors whilst showcasing local artistic talent. To achieve this, we begin by inviting local artists to submit original designs which are compiled into a local portfolio. The event organizer and sponsors then select the artists who transform their two-dimensional designs into life-sized cow masterpieces.

The heart of CowParade lies in the diverse range of replica cow models that you find in this catalogue. They are truly works of art; flawless reproductions of some of the most beloved and inspired life-size cows taken from any of our 100+ events around the world.

These copies of the life-sized cows, displayed at city events, are available for sale to the public. Made from polyresin or ceramic, the majority have been hand-painted and painstakingly reproduced. And they come in different sizes of reproductions, from XL to small; some designs across various sizes, others available in a unique size.

Each exclusive figurine comes packaged in its own box with a card detailing the name of the artist and the CowParade event in which it appeared. We select a range of new models from the many CowParade events and simultaneously retire some of the older models. This way we ensure relevance and exclusivity.

We do produce exclusive cows for trade partners who use it for corporate gifting, each with a unique design. And we have started working with new, young and aspiring artists to design dedicated CowParade figurines. All very exciting and expanding the activities of CowParade.

MATERIAL

Polyresin

A sturdy material that can be intricately molded, this is perfect material for creating complicated and delicate details on a host of CowParade models. It takes paint well, and has a similar appearance to porcelain and pottery. We use the material to make our XL, large, medium polyresin and small cows in our collection.

Ceramic

The noble and ancient material is a little more fragile but a better suited canvas for detailed and intricate artwork. We have dedicated an entire section for medium sized cows in our collection made of ceramic.

PRODUCT INFORMATION

The production of CowParade is an intricate and challenging process. Considering each figurine is an exact replica of either a life sized original event cow or a uniquely designed piece we must reproduce the detail as close to perfection as possible. Throughout the year our team of CowParade devotees select a number of new cows to add to the substantial collection.

Those selected will be added to the CowParade herd. Selected cows are photographed and sent to the design team who carefully produce 3D clay models to ensure every detail is well represented. The clay models are then used to create a silicone production mold for each individual cow.

We now have over 1.000 molds. The mold produces clean, white CowParade cows (already beauties we think!). Final sand-papering and dusting, and the white models are ready for painting.

All our models consist of more than 80% stoneware, basically sand and ground pebbles as part of our effort to support circular use of materials. We use certain chemical elements to bind the material together and be able to shape the figurines. No alternative is currently available to our basic materials but we always inquire on new developments to assess if and how we can further reduce our impact on our planet.

We carefully hand-paint the large majority of our cows. Not only do we take pride in reproducing the model, the labour of love lies in accurately replicating the original design.

Sometimes we have a stunning design which is too intricate even for our talented painters. In that case we use a decal, a specially made sticker specific to that cows design.

After the cows are painted, they need a few days to dry before we place them in a low temperature oven for final drying. This is why you will sometimes see a very small hole in our figurines, it is necessary to allow heated air out of the hollow inside of the cow which would otherwise break during the drying process.

Finally, a layer of lacquer is applied to protect the painting and shield our figurines from sunlight. Of course, direct exposure to sunlight will always cause fading of the painting but with sensible placement our figurines are engineered to give you many years of pleasure. Our advise is to avoid exposure to direct sunlight.

Enjoy your unique reproduction of an original design made by proud artists from all over the world.
